ABOUT

Even though I started my professional career as a Graphic Designer during my time studying at UFRJ - one of the best universities in Latin America - I've always been a tech-savy and a nerd, having created websites and small applications for myself and friends since my teenage years. So while eager to learn more and at the end of my university studies, I decided to embark on a new journey, taking a full turn to coding. I began studying by myself, and as I was falling in love with code, I made the decision to join the Le Wagon coding bootcamp, from where I began my career as a Full-Stack Web Developer. From there, I began working with Ruby as my main coding language, but also dedicated part of my time to Javascript and Typescript, learning more about React on the way to my Full-stack goals. Since then I've dabbled with Node.js and much more, recently working with Langchain to implement OpenAI in ongoing projects. Experienced with social & digital media work. I'm a geek, gamer, coffee lover, passionate about music, and a big trending topics follower.

Communicative and diplomatic, I believe that most problems can be solved through open discussions and good management, as communication is a team's key to success.
